

PROJECT
HOPE

N&O employee volunteers know that giving makes a difference.

CHN-00

"Working Together to Build a Better Community"

The Chapel Hill News
Chapel Hill • Carrboro • Hillsboro

NOTE: This upbeat article preceded the smear campaign instituted against Spencer C. Young

Monday, January 16, 2006

Home / News

MemberCenter

Register/Log In
Contact Us

News
Sports
Living
Pets
Weekend
Opinion
Our Town
@ The Schools
Classifieds
Daybook
Obituaries

Site Search

go

Archives Search

go

TopJobs

- Sr. Buyer
Nacco Materials Handling Group
- Training And Organizational Development Specialist
Voith Paper Fabrics/Voith Paper Rolls
- General & Multi-unit Managers
Smithfield's Chicken "n Bar-b-q
- Executive Director
North Carolina Head Start Association (N C H S A)
- Case Manager
The Arc Of North Carolina
- Route Sales Distributor
Bacon Products
- Assistant Manager
Creative Playthings
- Project Manager
Local Company
- Spanish Instructor
Coastal Carolina Community College
- Inside Home Sales
Oakwood Homes

View all TopJobs

News

Published: Dec 20, 2005

Changes are in store for The Courtyard

Lunchgoers walk to the entrance of Sandwich, a newly opened sandwich shop in The Courtyard at 431 W. Franklin St. There are plans for the redevelopment of the central courtyard and to move non-food tenants to second- and third-floor offices to make way for an international food court.

Staff photos by Harry Lynch

By LISA HOPPENJANS, STAFF WRITER

CHAPEL HILL -- The new owner of a West Franklin Street office and retail center wants to turn the property into a high-traffic hot spot for dining and shopping.

In September, Spencer Young, a New York real estate investor, paid about $3.4 million, including closing costs, for The Courtyard. The property has six buildings at the corner of Franklin and Roberson streets, arranged in a rectangle, with most of the business entrances off a grassy courtyard in the center.

In a preliminary plan distributed to tenants and some town officials, Young outlines plans for ground-floor retail spaces with preference given to tenants that fit "an international food court" motif. Upstairs spaces would remain dedicated to offices.

Young envisions replacing the courtyard's grass center with a patio and lush landscaping, where diners can relax at tables with colorful umbrellas. He wants it to be the type of place that could host art exhibits or outdoor concerts.

Right now, an upscale consignment shop, a hair salon, a coffee shop, a sandwich shop and Penang, a large restaurant serving Malaysian and Thai cuisine, are the only retail tenants in the nearly 28,000-square-foot commercial space.

"We want to make this a destination-type property, ... to create something that the town would be proud of," Young said.

He said the property struck him as being "very reminiscent of a European food court," and he'd like to accentuate that feel.

STORY TOOLS

Printer friendly

Send to a friend

RELATED STORIES

advertisement

The Triangle's
ONLY referral-based directory for busy women!

Order a free copy and refer your favorites at EveryBusyWoman.com

the little black book for every busy woman

Search Local Websites

- Movies
- Dining & Clubs
- Weddings
- Travel
- Search
- Education Guide

Marketplace

- Jobs Find|Post
- Autos Find|Post
- Homes Find|Post
- Rentals Find|Post

newsobserver.com

- Local & State
- Nation & World
- Politics
- Business
- Sports
- Lifestyles
- Opinion
- Obituaries

Young is energetic and peppers conversations with references to the Socratic method and the Dale Carnegie Course, founded by the late self-help pioneer. Young became interested in property in the area after his son enrolled at Duke University last year, and he keeps a part-time home-office in Chapel Hill's Meadowmont community.

While Young stresses that his plans might change, possible improvements include an illuminated water fountain, ornamental street lanterns that mimic gas lights, and flower boxes for the windows.

He'd also like to add retail space by converting about 1,100 square feet from the back of Penang into space for two tenants, with entrances off the courtyard.

Young wants to move carefully but quickly, he said, and plans to have all the work done by June.

Tenants seem receptive.

Janet Elbetri, who co-owns Sandwich with her husband, Hicham, said she too would like to see the space become a downtown gathering spot. She recalled her days as an undergraduate at UNC-Chapel Hill, when she'd relax on a bench by the courtyard grass after visiting the old Pyewacket, now Penang.

"It's such a beautiful retreat from Franklin Street," she said.

She's not worried about competition from other restaurants that may move in, she said.

"The more stuff there is back here, the more reason there is to come back here," she said. "In New York, you'd have one coffee shop right across the street from another, and all they did was give each other more business."

Orrin Robbins, a lawyer with space on the ground floor, said the plans are another example of growing interest in the town's West End.

"I believe the cultural epicenter of Chapel Hill is definitely moving to West Franklin Street," he said.

Contact staff writer Lisa Hoppenjans at 932-2014 or lhoppenj@nando.com

Back to previous page

 printer friendly    
  send to a friend    
  member center

News

- Board rejects market's request
- Restaurant coming to East Main
- In Review
- Bake Sale
- Dogwood neighbors fear traffic
- Some shoes are made for refixin'

^ back to top

thedurhamnews.com
easternwakenews.com
carynews.com

smithfieldherald.com
northraleighnews.com
chapelhillnews.com

© Copyright 2006, The News & Observer Publishing Company. All material found on www.chapelhillnews.com is copyrighted The News & Observer Publishing Company and associated news services. No material may be reproduced or reused without explicit permission from The News & Observer Publishing Company, Raleigh, North Carolina.

The News & Observer Publishing Company is owned by The McClatchy Company.